

LANDON GAINS IN FAVOR AS MANAGERS CLAIM 350 VOTES

Belief Is That Those Backing Kansas Governor Have
More Delegates

LIKELY ON FIRST BALLOT

Indiana Pledged 28 Votes Yesterday and Gave Landon
Great Boost

By George R. Holmes

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 4—Somewhat after the fashion of a snowball rolling down hill, the "Landon for President" bomb, charged along today,
picking up delegates here and there,
and convincing political observers that the Kansas Governor will be a first ballot nominee to oppose President Roosevelt in November.

The Landon managers, among them young, red-headed John D. N. Hamilton, who is slated to be the campaign manager, are modestly claiming "about 350 delegates" on the first ballot.

Actually, they know they have more than that number. Most Republican nominations for the presidency have been named on the first ballot. It gives an atmosphere of solidarity and unity
that the Republicans like.

The Landon managers can see no slip "twixt the cup and the lip." They have counted noses—east, west, north and south — and they will continue counting the figures. When Indiana came along yesterday and virtually pledged 28 votes to Landon, they proclaimed it "all over but the shouting."

Lauds Pardon System

Harrisburg, June 4—Pennsylvania's pardon system was lauded today by Lewis E. Meyer, Secretary of the State Board of Pardons, who announced that of the 314 prison inmates who received pardons or commutation of sentence since January, 1935, only three have violated their pardons.

Meyer said: "This is a record, one unparalleled in this or any state, or under the Federal pardon system. It is a direct result of the Board's policy that habitual, hardened criminals should not be pardoned via the pardon route."

Since the first of 1935, the board heard 1,613 applications for clemency.
A total of 62 pardons were granted,
while sentences of 314 were commutated and pardoned. One man under the death sentence was given a commutation to life imprisonment, and clemency pleas of 1,237 applicants were refused, including eleven who were electrocuted.

Hold Pair For Court For Robbing Man of $37

Two men were arrested last night and held without bail for court as the aftermath of a party staged Friday night at Morrisville along the River Road.

The men being held are Albert Cutler,
Morrisville and Russell Woodington, Trenton. It is alleged that the pair robbed Joseph Zelloe, Morrisville, following a party given at Charles Vanzant's, Morrisville.

According to Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo it was following the party at the Vanzant place that Cutler and Woodington took Zelloe out and robbed him of $37.

Detective Russo questioned eight or nine witnesses last night and finally the sweetheart of one of the men is said to have admitted that she had been told that the pair had robbed Zelloe.

a hearing last night before Justice of

Expect Far-Reaching Results

Trenton, N. J., June 4—An inter-state political and legal battle of far-reaching proportions appeared likely to result today from the indictment of Ellis Parker, Sr., in the Wendel kidnapping probe.

The fact that the Brooklyn Grand Jury returned an indictment against the senior Parker, on charges of abduction and torture of Paul Wendel, became known last night when the rural detective was taken into custody last night at his Mount Holly, N. J., home.

Parker's son, Ellis Parker, Jr., is being sought by Brooklyn authorities, under a similar indictment. Today, attaches of the office of the district attorney said they would present papers calling for Parker's extradition to Governor Hoffman of New Jersey, as soon as they are signed by Governor Lehman of New York.

Under the law, Governor Hoffman must set a hearing of the charges against Parker.

Parker, who is free under $500 bail,
by a shirt-sleeved magistrate, who held court in Mt. Holly's Elks' Club, branded the incident as "spite work."

"The District Attorney is just trying to embarrass Governor Hoffman by his refusal to recapture Colonel H.
Norman Schwarzkopf as Superintendent of the State Police," he said. "I expected this before. I am surprised it didn't happen sooner."

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1936

MONTH OF WEDDINGS

June is traditionally the favorite month for weddings. The poet said that in spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. Presumably by June his fancy has become so emotional, that the word, "lightly" no longer applies to it.

The cynical observer may say that all weddings are more or less alike, except of course that many of them are very ornate and beautiful spectacles. But whether such an event is a highly finished picture, or a very unpretentious affair for a few relatives and friends, every such event is a dramatic turning-point in the history of one man and one woman.

Such an event, even the very simplest little wedding, is a climax of human experience, a kind of high mountain top of life, toward which the climbing paths have reached for many years, and where distant views into the more or less misty future are obtained.

What see these young couples, as they look out from that elevated position in their life history? Can they see fair skies ahead, bright sunshine, fruitful labors?

It is this mystery of the unknown future that throws its veil of romance over every such event. But anyway, the world gives its best send-off to these young people about to start out on their pilgrimage. They are on the mountain top of experience now, but they have to pass through dusty valleys, where the way will not be so clear and plain. But love and labor and sacrifice can find its way through the darkest thicket. It's up to you, young folks! You can make every marriage a success if you will.

IT'S JUNE

That old march of Tempus seems never to be halted or turned aside. Sometimes we wish the travel were faster, but usually it is entirely too swift. It seems now, as we write it June, as if only a few days had elapsed since Father Time introduced us to January 1.

We're rather in favor of June. It may have its drawbacks, it may not be everything that everybody could desire, but, by and large, it's really the most satisfying month in the year. There's no wonder that Mr. Tennyson asked "What is so rare as a day in June?"

Brides, roses, vacation, picnics, growing crops, June peas, early cherries and new garden truck, along with perfection in home-made strawberries characterize June. It's a lazy month, too, what with mounting temperatures, cool shades that lure one from one's labor, fleecy clouds that inspire dreaming, and nights that are as near perfection as anything can be.

But we're on the last lap of the first half of 1936. After all, June has but 30 days, and, land how fast they evaporate!

We're in favor of having June made about three times as long as it now is. That's about all the improvement the sixth month of the calendar seems to need.

Using your wife as a secretary isn't satisfactory. You hate to make your wife lie for you.

If nature knows best, why do we have 17-year locusts in the same summer as campaign orators?

MRS. CRABTREE ADVISES JUNE BRIDE HOW TO GET THE RIGHT START

Dear Friends in Bristol:

June, the month of brides! And to those brides come helpful suggestions that will make realization just as glorious as anticipation ever was.

When a woman creates a home, she conducts the greatest business in the world. She must be an executive. She must be a financial authority and budget the money of the household. But all this will avail nothing without efficiency to smoothly run the home, a heart to serve and a smile to brighten the lives of others.

Equipment

Purchase the tools for the new home as you would the equipment for which they will be used. If a sauce pan is to have continuous wear, it should be built to stand that wear. If a bowl will be utilized but occasionally, an inexpensive one will serve the same purpose as a more costly one. Ask yourself these questions before buying: Is the utensil the proper size for my use? Is it practical, convenient, and easy to handle? Will it clean easily?

Do not purchase household or kitchen equipment in a hurry. Make a list of the things you will need to run the home efficiently. Check over the items carefully and purchase the backbone of supplies. These would include a coffee maker of some type. Good coffee can be made in any of the various ways—a percolator, drip-or-lator, coffee maker which requires pulverized coffee; or even an old-fashioned enamel pot.

A tea kettle should be ample in size for your greatest need of freshly boiling water. Then if you wish only a small amount, the bottom of the tea kettle will be covered and water will be boiling in a "jiffy."

A good double boiler serves numerous purposes. The newer type gives the use of a large and a small sauce pan, or they may be fitted together to form the boiler for steam cooking. A quart size is handy and convenient for hot cereals, seven-minute frosting, custards and sauces.

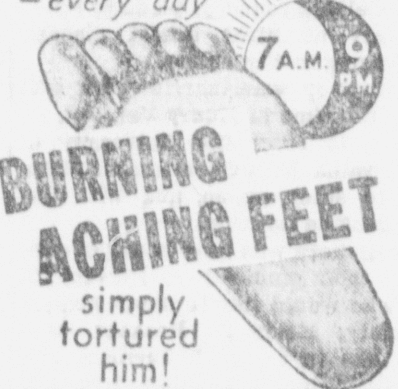

Frying pans or skillets as they are called in some sections of the country, should be of a heavy metal. Aluminum, cast iron or any metal that will heat evenly and hold the heat. It is a convenience to have one small frying pan for frying bacon or eggs for two; another medium sized for the regular family meal; a third and large size with a fitted cover for frying chicken, swiss steak, and foods that one would steam or cook slowly in their gravy or natural juices.

A French frying kettle is a life saver. Men the world over have an in-born fondness for french fried potatoes, onions and oysters. Women delight in soft, delicate croquette mixtures with a crusty outside.

Mixing bowls should be round bottoms, stainless and in various sizes that nest. These may be in color to brighten the kitchen.

"QUEENS" OF TRANSPORTATION

The Monarch of the skies—The Hindenburg—flew gracefully and swiftly over the broad Atlantic to bring together the Old and the New worlds in record time.

And now comes the "Queen Mary," largest and most majestic of all ships afloat, to try her hand at connecting the two continents in record time.

It's hard to picture anything quite so big as are these modern ships of transportation; you have to see them to get an idea of their huge proportions. It took months of planning before a keel or a frame could be started, and then more months of hard work after the construction was actually begun.

So it is with life insurance. To really map out an attractive worthwhile "future problem" requires some planning and then it takes time to build up the amount of insurance you want to carry.

Begin to build today by insuring with us.

bowls and easy on the nerves as they make no noise.

Measuring cups and standard measuring spoons are essentials. The measuring cups should include both the dry and the liquid measure type, that is: the liquid cup should measure full below the level of the actual cup itself, thus preventing any running over; the dry measure cup is a full cup at the top thus enabling one to level off flour or sugar with a knife or spatula. These cups may be metal or glass. Glass ones may be tempered by putting them into cold water and bringing to a boil. This will prevent their breaking when hot liquids are measured.

Household Gadgets

Simple tools make light work for the home maker. A tool box in the kitchen; another one on the second floor will pay for itself many times over. This box should include nails and tacks in various sizes, file, hammer, screw driver, tack puller and other items of personal choice. To keep them ever in place, paint the handles some bright color. This will remind the user to return them to their rightful place.

Bushes are most helpful. Select them for wear, utility and convenience.

Kitchen Gadgets

Tools that make the foods to be served more beautiful, are an asset to any household. A pastry bag of canvas with a star tube will border a meat loaf with potatoes and make it a picture; a metal decorating set will give a festive look to the simplest of cakes; a potato baller may be used for turnips, melons, potatoes, carrots or any fruit or vegetable that is firm. Knives and spatulas should not be bought for price alone. Good steel knives will hold a sharp edge; spatulas of fine steel will bend and give the assistance required of them. However, even though they are more costly to purchase, with care they

THE BRIDE'S CHEST OF LINEN

Not Too Much, Not Too Little, But Of Good Quality.

Each room of the house is going to need its supply of linen. If possible have a linen compartment or closet for each room and bathroom. It is a simple, easy arrangement and avoids confusion.

Use linen each time from the bottom of the pile. In this way the linen is equally used and will wear longer. Household wares should be checked over before washing to prevent the setting of any stains or enlarging of any torn or worn places.

BEDROOM: Six sheets to each bed. Three pillow cases to each pillow. Two covers for each dresser. One heavy blanket, one lightweight blanket or quilt, one comforter. Two bed covers or coverlets.

BATHROOM: Six hand towels, four bath towels, four wash cloths, twelve small hand towels or guest towels, two bath mats for each bathroom.

KITCHEN: Twelve dish towels, six glass towels, twelve towels for heavier drying around the kitchen, eight pan holders, and six roller towels or eight hand towels for two persons.

BREAKFAST ROOM: Six simple cloths or two cloths and four mat sets. These may be linen, gingham or cotton. Napkins to match each set.

DINING ROOM: Two damask cloths for formal use with matching napkins in eighths or dozen lots, a lace cloth, and two cloths for informal use either in colored damask or printed or blocked linen.

FIT AND THE FABRIC
MAKE A MAN'S SUIT
APPEAR JUST RIGHT

By RHANDENA A. ARMSTRONG
Home Economics Representative

Men do not commonly use the term "becoming" when selecting a suit, hat, or tie, but this does not mean that they are any less interested in choosing their clothes than women are. They want them to be "right"—which is just another way of saying the same thing.

Two main types of men's suitings are woolsens and worsteds. Woolsens are made of short wool fibers, carded and spun into a yarn which has little or no twist. The finishing is done by brushing up a nap so the actual weave does not show. This nap is sometimes clipped and sometimes pressed very flat and smooth. Woolsens include tweed, homespun, cheviot, broadcloth, flannel, and over-coatings. Garments made of woolsens wear well, but they get out of shape easily, and if they receive hard wear, may become threadbare where the nap wears off. Such woolsens as tweed or homespun are sturdy and warm. In general woolsens are less expensive than worsteds, but are less durable.

Worsteds are made from long wool fibers which are spun into yarns more tightly twisted than for woolsens. These materials are very durable, but soon become shiny due to a smooth surface finish. Serge is an example. Some suiting materials combine woolen and worsted yarns and have some qualities of both. Flannel may be woven of either type of yarn, the worsted flannel having a smoother finish and being of lighter weight.

A very loosely woven cloth may be detected by holding it up to the light. Good workmanship and tailoring are very important because a suit of good material may give poor service if the workmanship is poor. Check the workmanship by looking for generous seam allowance with a neat finish, good stitching with extra stitching at points of strain, well made buttonholes, and buttons sewed securely. Lining should be of firm material and items inconspicuous.

No suit is satisfactory unless it fits correctly. A well-fitted suit fits snugly around the neck at both back and sides; shoulders fit smoothly and are of proper length for the shoulders of the wearer; sleeves are long enough to cover the wrists and hang straight from the top of the shoulder; the lapels and coat front are smooth and both sides of the front hang evenly—the hem of the coat is straight across the back and is long enough to cover the fullness in the back of the trousers. The lines of the trousers fall straight from below the coat, with no bagginess at the heel.

Unusual or too bright colors and fady designs want to be avoided. The most becoming color should always be first choice. Mixed colors often give a pleasing effect. Dark shades make the figure appear smaller. Double breasted coats and coats with belted backs are designed for the slender youthful figure. Short men who wish to appear taller should select simple conservative lines.
